is a powerful collaboration between artists from the United States, Europe and South Africa. Based in Washington, DC, the organization highlights the African-American fraternity and sorority tradition of stepping and its connections to cultures across the globe. Step Afrika! maintains an international presence through its development of the Step Afrika! International Cultural Festival in Johannesburg, South Africa, and Step Afrika! UK in London, England. A leader in the field of arts-in-education, Step Afrika! provides quality arts experiences for thousands of children, K-12. Each year, Step Afrika! reaches close to 50,000 young people. The company works closely with the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Washington Performing Arts Society, the Smithsonian Institution and community-based organizations throughout the country.

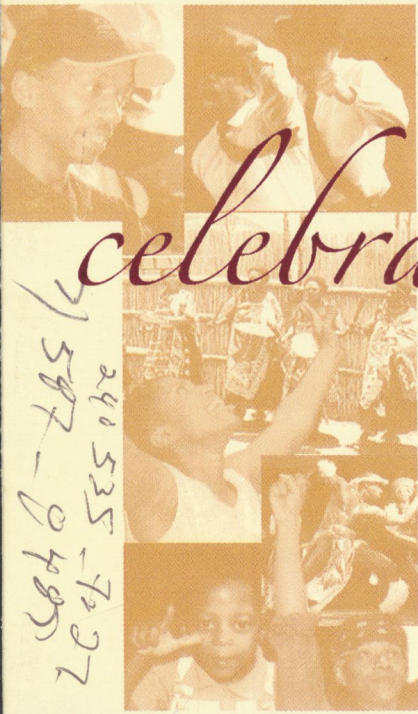

Founding Director: C. Brian Williams
Artistic Director: Kirsten Ledford
